These transmissions are from God, the creator of everything. The purpose is to awaken your spiritual intelligence. Naturally, some parts will contradict your beliefs. Belief is the enemy of truth. You are not being asked to change your beliefs. You are being asked to apply your intelligence to religion. All the old religions rely on belief to create followers. The new and only religion needs no belief at all, just a single hypothesis: God exists as life and its source. The enquiry of religion is to verify the hypothesis by direct experience. Only direct experience has significance for a religious person. Repeating words from holy books dulls your religious intelligence. Enquiry is the way to find the truth. Religion is science of the inner world. When you understand this, you put aside your beliefs and your real adventure of discovery begins. It takes a little courage and authenticity to admit that you don't know much without belief in your religion, and there is no other way to know the truth.
